

THE BOARD OF THE
HARVARD KROKODILOES

PROCLAMATION FOR FRANCIS HIGGINSON CABOT '49

On this day, upon the occasion of a large gathering of Harvard Krokodiloes, alumni, family, and friends, at the Kroks' performance at Carnegie Hall in New York City, an event which has caused us to reflect on our good fortune and shared history, be it resolved:

We, the members and alumni of the Harvard Krokodiloes, honor you, Francis Higginson Cabot, on May 7, 2010. Like the many gardens you have coaxed from rocky soil into resplendent life, we have grown from the seeds of your quartet into an international brotherhood more than four hundred strong. Throughout six and a half decades, your good humor, deep dedication to your brethren, and unflagging zeal for the fellowship of singing have defined the Krok spirit. You have led a life devoted to the spread of harmonious beauty in both the physical and musical worlds, and we feel honored to be a part of it. On stage or street corner, now as ever, wherever Kroks burst into joyous song, behind each verse is a silent refrain of gratitude to a beloved founder of "the best damn brotherhood in all the land."

Hereby enacted by the Board,

Eliah Seton, President
